Executive Summary

The Attorney General's Electronic Interceptions Report 2014, is issued pursuant to Penal Code section 629.62 and can be referenced on the Attorney General's website at <http://oag.ca.gov>.

Electronic intercepts are legally sanctioned surveillance of electronic communications for law enforcement purposes. This report contains electronic interception data and describes how electronic intercepts have enhanced the ability of state and federal law enforcement agencies to identify and dismantle drug trafficking organizations (DTO), solve serious and violent crimes and incapacitate criminal street gangs. Multi-national DTO's, criminal street gangs, and individuals often use telecommunications to advance their illegal objectives. These illegal objectives include kidnapping, organized crime, drug trafficking, and murder. Through use of court-authorized electronic intercepts, law enforcement has an effective tool to investigate and prevent these crimes. In some cases, electronic intercepts have led to solving decade-old crimes where no other avenue produced results. In other cases, DTO activity was halted and millions of dollars in narcotic proceeds as well as voluminous amounts of narcotics were seized.

Several counties provide exemplary examples of the benefits of electronic intercepts:

Stanislaus County (2014-STA-70) utilized electronic intercepts to dismantle a drug smuggling cartel operating from Mexico to Northern California. As a result of the interceptions, over 700 pounds of methamphetamine was seized.

Riverside County (2014-RIV-1097) worked with federal agents in using electronic intercepts to gather intelligence to stop a large-scale cocaine smuggling operation based out of two South American countries.

Sonoma County (2014-SON-7) successfully employed electronic intercepts to gather crucial information on a 1992 unsolved murder.

A Los Angeles County (2014-LA-811) investigation, which included electronic intercepts, of a DTO concluded with sixteen people arrested with more arrests expected, the seizure of $1 million in narcotic proceeds, 600 pounds of methamphetamine, and multiple vehicles.

From intelligence-gathering to arrests and prosecutions, these examples demonstrate that electronic intercepts are essential tools that law enforcement employs to combat the ever-changing criminal element.

Though the report is divided into separate tables, the tables should be read in conjunction with one another to evaluate the impact intercepts have on public safety. Tables 1, 2, and 3 reflect the statistics of arrest, convictions and nature of intercept orders and post-intercept court activity. Table 4 contains a description of and optional commentary for each intercept. Table 5 represents compliance with the inventory notice requirement given to those who were subjected to intercepts. Table 6 shows the cost of each intercept. Table 7 lists counties with no intercepts to report. Table 8 provides supplemental information for intercepts approved prior to 2014 but completed later. Finally, Table 9 lists intercept orders which were never used. If you have any questions or comments about this report, please contact the Criminal Law Division of the Attorney General's Office at (916) 445-9555.

<sup>1</sup> The disparity between "Number of Persons Arrested" and "Number of Persons Convicted" may be attributed to the fact that a number of those arrested are pending either charges or trial, a process which could take a period of time, or that the intercept was a part of a large-scale investigation.
