As a data controller, we will only use your personal data in compliance with applicable law. For example, under the UK GDPR, we may be required to have a legal basis for processing your personal data. The purpose for which we use and process your information and the legal basis on which we carry out each type of processing is explained in the table below. Note that we may process your personal data for more than one legal basis.

Updating Your Information And Opting Out

Where you provide consent, you can withdraw your consent at any time and free of charge, but without affecting the lawfulness of processing based on consent before its withdrawal. No withdrawal of consent will be effective until we receive it and have had a reasonable period of time to act on it. You can update your details or change your privacy preferences by contacting us as provided in “Contacting Us” below.

To review, correct, update, delete, object, or otherwise limit our use of your personal data that has been provided to us, or request portability and/or details of your personal data that is held by us, please contact us using the contact information listed below in the “Contacting Us” section and clearly describe your request.

Jonas Software As Data Processor

In certain cases, we also operate as a data processor and we collect, process, and transfer personal data on behalf of our business customers in the provision of our services and products. In these circumstances, Jonas Software is acting as a data processor and our business customers remain the data controller in respect of personal data they provide to us.

Our business customers remain the data controllers with respect to any personal data that they provide to us for our provision of services. To the extent that we are acting as data processor, we act in accordance with the instructions of such customers regarding the collection, processing, storage, deletion, and transfer of customer data, as well as other matters such as the provision of access to and rectification of personal data. We will only use such personal data for the purposes of providing the services and products for which our business customers have engaged us.

Our business customers are responsible for ensuring that these individuals' privacy is respected, including communicating to the individuals in their own privacy policies who their personal data is being shared with and processed by. Where Jonas Software is acting as a data processor, we will refer any request from an individual for access to personal data which we hold about them to our customer. We will not usually respond directly to the request.

As a data processor, we may share personal data where instructed by our business customer. Where authorised by the business customer, we may also share personal data with third party service providers who work for us and who are subject to security and confidentiality obligations.

We will retain personal data which we process on behalf of our customers for as long as appropriate to provide services and products to our customers and in accordance with any agreement with our customers or as permitted by applicable law.

Disclosure Of Your Personal Data To Third Parties

We may share your personal data with our group companies, affiliates, subsidiaries, or contractors as appropriate to carry out the purposes for which the information was supplied or collected (i.e. to provide the services and products you have requested from us) or as otherwise provided in this policy. Personal data will also be shared with our third-party service providers and business partners who assist with the running of the Sites and our services and products (including hosting providers, email service providers and payment processing partners). Our third-party service providers and business partners are subject to security and confidentiality obligations and are only permitted to process your personal data for specified purposes and in accordance with our instructions.

In addition, we may disclose personal data about you when we believe that such use or disclosure is reasonably appropriate to: comply with any legal or regulatory obligation; enforce the terms of our agreements; establish, exercise or defend the rights of Jonas Software, our staff, customers or others; protect our rights, property, safety or vital interests, or the rights, property, safety or vital interests of our users or other third parties; and implement the purchase of all or substantially all of our assets, a merger, or other similar transaction that results in a change of control.

Changes to GDPR post Brexit

On top of the existing legislation, the UK government has issued a statutory instrument titled 'The Data Protection, Privacy and Electronic Communications (Amendments etc) (EU Exit) Regulations 2019'. In simple terms, this amends the original law and merges it with the requirements of GDPR. The outcome will be a new data protection framework known as the 'UK GDPR'.

Once the UK leaves the EU, as a non-member state it will be reclassified as a 'third country'.

Under GDPR (the EU version), transferring personal data from the European Economic Area (EEA) to third countries is permitted under the following agreement.

The 'Trade and Cooperation Agreement' contains a provision allowing data flows between the EU and UK to continue as they were pre-Brexit for a maximum of six months. In other words, data can still be transferred in the way it was pre-January 2021 until June this year.

The ICO will remain the independent supervisory body regarding the UK's data protection legislation.

The UK government will continue to work towards maintaining close working relationships between the ICO and other countries' supervisory authorities once the transition period ends.

International Transfers

If you are based in the EU or EEA

We may share your personal data within the Jonas group of companies. This involves transferring your data outside the European Economic Area (EEA) to Jonas' affiliates and third-party service providers in Canada, United States, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and Malaysia. Canada and New Zealand have been deemed by the EU as having an adequate level of protection for personal data.

Whenever we transfer your personal data outside the EEA to the countries identified above which have not been deemed by the EU to have an adequate level of protection for personal data, and specifically to the United States, we ensure a similar degree of protection is afforded to it by using standard data protection clauses approved by the European Commission (as permitted under Article 46(2)(c)) that are designed to help safeguard your privacy rights or by certifying under the E.U.-U.S. Privacy Shield and the Swiss-U.S. Privacy Shield.

Security Of Your Personal Data

The security of your personal data is important to us. We follow generally accepted industry standards to protect the personal data received by us. We use commercially reasonable measures to safeguard personal data, which measures are appropriate to the type of information maintained and follow applicable laws regarding the safeguarding of any such information under our control. No method of transmission over the Internet, or method of electronic storage, can be 100% secure. Therefore, we cannot guarantee the absolute security of your personal data. The Internet by its nature is a public forum, and we encourage you to use caution when disclosing information online. Often, you are in the best situation to protect yourself online. You are responsible for protecting your username and password from third party access, and for selecting passwords that are secure.

Data Retention: How Long We Keep Your Personal Data

We will retain personal data which we process on behalf of our customers for as long as appropriate to provide services and products to our customers in accordance with any agreement in place with our customers and for other legitimate purposes. When you contact us, we may keep a record of personal data contained in your communication to help solve any issues that you might be facing. Your personal data may be retained for as long as appropriate to fulfil the purposes we collected it for, including for the purposes of satisfying any legal, accounting, or reporting requirement, and for other legitimate purposes. In determining how long we will retain personal data; we will consider all relevant factors.

Your Rights

You may request from us access to, correction of, blocking of and/or deletion of your personal data in line with applicable law. You may also withdraw your consent for us to process your personal data. However, this will not affect the lawfulness of any processing carried out before you withdraw your consent. Where your personal data is processed by us with your consent or for the performance of a contract by automated means, we will, to the extent required by applicable law, provide to you, or a third party you have chosen, your personal data in a structured, commonly used, machine-readable format upon request.

Responding To Requests

We may need to request specific information from you to help us confirm your identity and ensure your right to access your personal data (or to exercise any of your other rights) under applicable law. This is a security measure to protect personal data from being disclosed to any person who has no right to receive it. We may also contact you to ask for further information in relation to your request to speed up our response. We try to respond to all legitimate requests within one month.

Occasionally it may take us longer than a month if your request is particularly complex or you have made a number of requests. In this case, we will notify you and keep you updated. You will not have to pay a fee to access your personal data (or to exercise any of your other rights) under applicable law. However, we may charge a reasonable fee if your request is clearly unfounded, repetitive, or excessive. Alternatively, we may refuse to comply with your request in these circumstances. Also, please note that we may refuse a request for blocking and/or deletion where continued processing is necessary to comply with a legal obligation or necessary for the establishment, exercise, or defence of legal claims or for other purposes permitted by applicable law.

We will, to the extent required by any applicable law, disclose, delete, or take any other action with respect to any of personal data that is collected by us from residents of California. ### General Data Protection Regulation (see above for Post Brexit Guidance)

Subject to certain limitations and exceptions, if you are in the European Economic Area, you have the following rights under the GDPR:

- Access to personal data. This enables you to receive a copy of the personal data we hold about you and to check that we are lawfully processing it.
- Correction of personal data. This enables you to have any incomplete or inaccurate data we hold about you corrected, though we may need to verify the accuracy of the new data you provide to us.
- Request erasure of personal data (Right to be forgotten). This enables you to ask us to delete personal data when there is no good reason for us continuing to process it. You also have the right to ask us to delete your personal data when you have successfully exercised your right to object to processing (see below), when we may have processed your information unlawfully or when we are required to erase your personal data to comply with applicable law.

When rights to be forgotten can be overridden

However, an organisation's right to process someone's data might override their right to be forgotten. Here are the reasons cited in the GDPR that trump the right to erasure:

- The data is being used to exercise the right of freedom of expression and information.
- The data is being used to comply with a legal ruling or obligation.

- The data is being used to perform a task that is being carried out in the public interest or when exercising an organization's official authority.
- The data being processed is necessary for public health purposes and serves in the public interest.
- The data being processed is necessary to perform preventative or occupational medicine. This only applies when the data is being processed by a health professional who is subject to a legal obligation of professional secrecy.
- The data represents important information that serves the public interest, scientific research, historical research, or statistical purposes and where erasure of the data would likely to impair or halt progress towards the achievement that was the goal of the processing.
- The data is being used for the establishment of a legal defence or in the exercise of other legal claims.

Restriction of processing personal data. This enables you to ask us to suspend the processing of your personal data in the following scenarios: (a) if you want us to establish the data's accuracy; (b) when our use of personal data is unlawful, but you do not want us to erase it; (c) when you want us to hold personal data even if we no longer require it as you need it to establish, exercise or defend legal claims; or (d) you have objected to our use of personal data, subject to our verifying whether we have an overriding legitimate interest to continue using it.

Request transfer of personal data. We will provide to you, or a third party you have chosen, your personal data in a structured, commonly used, machine-readable format.

Right to withdraw consent. You can withdraw your consent at any time when we are relying on consent to process your personal data. However, this will not affect the lawfulness of any processing carried out before you withdraw your consent.

Complaints

If we receive formal written requests or complaints, we will follow up with the party making the request or complaint. To the extent required by applicable law, where we would not properly address properly your request, you have the right to lodge a complaint with the competent data protection authority in your locality (for example, in the UK, the supervisory authority would be the Information Commissioner's Office).

Otherwise, any complaint by you regarding personal data or otherwise relating to this policy must first be submitted to Jonas as set forth in the Contacting Us section and Jonas must be given a reasonable opportunity of not less than 30 days to investigate and respond to your complaint. Upon our completing such investigation and so responding, we and you must then, in good faith, attempt to promptly resolve any remaining aspects of your complaint. If any aspect of your remains unresolved after an additional reasonable period of not less than 30 days, you may commence litigation against us in connection with the unresolved portion of your complaint only in a court located in the county (or other similar municipality) in which Jonas is located. You consent to any such court being a proper venue for such litigation and waive any right to object to such venue for inconvenience or otherwise.
